Dear Parents,

I hope you are all managing to stay safe and well.

I know that you have been trying your very best to do some of the work that has been posted by the teachers. Please do not allow this to add stress to your situation - get done what you can! Many of you will be trying to juggle working from home, continuing to go to work if you're a keyworker, caring for your child at home, doing the essential shopping etc - we understand, this is an incredibly difficult situation.

As parents you may be worrying about your child falling behind – this is something that we will work on when we return to school – try not to worry!

The amount of work that the children will complete will vary in each household and within the same household from week to week. A child that was keen to complete the novel way of working last week, may not have the same motivation this week. If they are able to do a bit of maths, and reading each day and writing most days then great. Some days though none of this will happen and that's OK.

Teachers have uploaded their weekly grid to the website for ideas of how to help you help your child. Your day does not have to be filled with this work, there are many other things that the children will be doing as well. Remember, we are still here via email to answer any of your queries.

There will be no grids added next week due to the 'Easter break' – I am asking that the staff take a break as many are also trying to juggle their roles, and I need them to look after their own wellbeing, which I am sure you understand.

Take great care everyone,
